03 Chair Report

I am privileged to continue to serve as Chair of the ACAH Board and am well into the second year of my term. Many of the Directors also hold other roles on the Board or in the organisation, on top of their day-to-day work and family life. This represents an impressive commitment to improving child and adolescent health in Australia and beyond.

I am also grateful to the many members who have made very valuable contributions to the organisation and to those who aren't members but have worked with us from a shared foundation of commitment to promoting the health and wellbeing of every newborn, child and young person in order that they may reach their maximum potential.

I particularly want to thank PreVoc committee members under the leadership of Pretashini Somasundrum, organisers of the highly successful ACAH2026 Conference, under the leadership of Marissa Loh and Monica Parker and those leading ACAH2027 Conference Programme development.

Earlier this year, the Board reflected on our position and role and agreed to position the ACAH for growth. Some key features of this strategy include:

- Increase expenditure on administrative support, recognising that this improves consistency across and sustainability of the ACAH.
- Enhanced support for Pre-Voc Committee that has developed a comprehensive strategy of programs for students and trainees.
- Increase allied health and nursing engagement.
- Updating of the ACAH sponsorship

Some enablers of this new strategic approach include the profit from ACAH2026 Conference, enthusiasm of members and the increasing awareness and support for the ACAH.

Dr Jacqueline Small
ACAH Chair

04 Membership Update

The ACAH Board recognises the importance of alignment of values, professional benefits and impact of the ACAH for existing and potential members. Some key member benefits include:

- Free regular webinars held throughout the year on current topics.
- Reduced registration rates and a range of opportunities to participate in ACAH Annual conference.
- A widening network of like-minded organisations connected to the ACAH through Affiliated Organisation Relationship.
- Research in child and adolescent health is actively supported through our conference and other activities.
- Mentoring for paediatric trainees led by PreVoc Committee.
- A Board that reflects the diversity of our membership, and potential membership, with Directors across the professional lifespan and disciplines. We are proud that a senior Aboriginal health researcher is on our Board.

Membership details:

By End June 2026 the membership status was:

125

Membership Paid:
(increase on 2025 115%)

99

Student membership:
(increase on 2025 55%)

224

Total:
(increase on 2025 105%)

NB- % change comparison to 30.06.2025. Membership numbers reported in 2025 were as of September 2025.

> It is a joy to be involved with ACAH as it has 2 unique strengths: Because we know that there is much to learn from other professionals who work with children, we are multidisciplinary, and, Our focus is not solely on our members. Our main focus is on advocacy for children and young people, particularly the most vulnerable.

06 Affiliated Organisation Relationships

The Board has approved the establishment of Affiliated Organisation Relationships (AFO) that seek to build networks of like minded organisations that share our values and improve child and adolescent health.

We have contacted a number of organisations and are in the early stages of establishing wider connections through AFO. Special thanks to Les White who has supported contact with a number of organisations, with the first AFOs established: Starlight Children's Foundation and Children's Healthcare Australasia.

08 Advocacy

The ACAH actively advocated on the following topics:

01

Gambling in children: ACAH supported full implementation of the Murphy Report, 2023.

02

Thriving Kids: ACAH wrote to and met representatives from a number of jurisdictions. We advocated for an equitable and family centred approach.

> ACAH is a wonderful organisation that champions meaningful advocacy and amplifies voices that often go unheard. I have been fortunate enough to be involved with the Academy since I was a medical student and as a current paediatric advanced trainee, ACAH continues to play a pivotal role in shaping the paediatrician and advocate I aspire to become!
> Anysha Walia,
> Paediatric Trainee and Board Director

> I love working with the Academy! It responds quickly to address advocacy needs, such as with our work for #KidsoffNauru, in a multidisciplinary organisation with shared values.
>
> Hasantha Gunasekera
> Treasurer and Board Director

> I enjoy being involved in the ACAH with so many passionate and inspiring health professionals leading important advocacy and support for children and young people.

ACAH26 Recap
Building Brighter Futures – Day 1

"You will be the difference, and you will be the change."

These were the powerful words sung by Dr Richard Fejo, Senior Larrakia Elder, which opened the 2026 Academy of Child and Adolescent Health Conference (ACAH26) and set the scene for three days of inspiring and meaningful conversations about contemporary issues facing today's children and youth, with a focus on First Nations health. Following a standing ovation, ACAH26, with a theme of Building Brighter Futures, was off to a strong start, welcoming over 170 delegates and speakers from every state and territory in Australia and as far as Japan.

Day 1, themed Building Healthy Starts, opened with Dr Fejo's Welcome to Country and Opening Plenary. This was followed by a plenary from Prof Nelson Martins, who spoke about his experiences in public health, policy and child health in Timor-Leste, and in building a health care system in a country ravaged by conflict, as a former Health Minister.

After this, Raelene Mungatopi, Roy Farmer, Paul Bourke, Linda Pupangamirri and Libby Coombes, Aboriginal Health Practitioners from the Tiwi Islands, shared their honest and heartfelt stories and journeys in becoming health workers and caring for their mob.

The afternoon then featured contemporary research in First Nations health with eminent Menzies researchers Prof Amanda Leach, Dr Jemima Beissbarth and Dr Bianca Middleton. This was followed by Pharmacy Updates with the Sydney Children's Hospital team, Peter Barclay, Deshina Naidoo, Dr Felicity Wright and Madison Groves, which was an excellent opportunity to learn from our Pharmacy colleagues about recent developments in therapeutics. The day concluded with one of Darwin's spectacular sunsets at the Ski Club.

ACAH26 Recap
Building Brighter Futures – Day 2

The theme of day 2 was Building Stronger Youths. The day began with the wise words of Aunty Angelena Harradine, a senior Kaurna Elder from South Australia, who shared the importance of Country and cultural identity in youth wellbeing. This was followed by a panel on Youth Mental Health, facilitated by Dr Amelia Lewis, with Angelena Harradine, Ranjika Huppatz-Daley (Western Arrernte and Bundjalung woman, Mental Health Researcher) and Simon Davis (Program Manager, Headspace).

From here, the Youth Justice session opened with a plenary from Shahleena Musk (Larrakia woman, NT Children's Commissioner), who set the scene for the current state of youth justice in the NT and the shocking reality for our most vulnerable children.

A panel discussion, moderated by Dr Richard Fejo, then focused on current advocacy work and challenges in this space, with Natalie Hunter (Nykina and Jabba Jabba woman, Founding Member of Close Don Dale Now and Justice Not Jails), Mililma May (Larrakia and Tiwi woman, Community Organiser), Justine Davis MLA (Independent Member) and John Lawrence SC (Legal Practitioner). This was an extremely powerful morning which highlighted the injustices facing youth in the justice system, especially First Nations youth, and served as a call to action for many.

The afternoon of day 2 then focused on common issues in our daily clinical practice in the NT. Facilitated by Dr Monica Parker, Dr Kiarna Brown (First Nations Obstetrician and Gynaecologist), Dr Mantho Kgosiemang, Dr Mathew Wong and Dr Gurmeet Singh (Paediatricians and Neonatologists) discussed successes and challenges in establishing maternal and neonatal services, including retrievals, in the context of the NT.

Dr Angela Titmuss (Paediatric Endocrinologist) presented on youth-onset type 2 diabetes, and Prof Anna Ralph (Infectious Diseases Physician), Dr Hilary Hardefeldt (Paediatric Cardiologist) and A/Prof Jennifer Yan (Infectious Diseases Paediatrician) presented on the latest in rheumatic heart disease and acute rheumatic fever. Patient stories and personal experiences highlighted the challenges that First Nations youth face and how clinicians can best care for children with these conditions. Finally, Prof Tom Snelling (Head of Health and Clinical Analytics at the University of Sydney) discussed how to best optimise value from research. Day 2 finished with the Conference Cocktail Evening at the Trailer Boat Club, with canapés, drinks and wonderful company over yet another beautiful sunset.

ACAH2026

23–25 April 2026 Darwin

The third and final day, Powerful Communities, served as a meaningful reminder about our role as paediatric doctors in advocating and caring for vulnerable children and their families. Dr Sarah Cherian shared her experiences in caring for refugee and asylum seeker families for over twenty years and the development and evolution of a holistic and multidisciplinary service.

This was followed by a panel about the health of children experiencing war and conflict, chaired by Dr Jacki Small, with Prof Amy Gray (Chair and Head of Department of Paediatrics at The University of Melbourne), Prof Shanti Raman (Paediatrician, Editor-in-Chief BMJ Paediatrics Open) and Prof Nelson Martins. Personal and professional reflections emphasised the significance and scope of the problem, with millions of children worldwide affected by this humanitarian crisis. This poignant panel allowed us to reflect on the challenges and obligations of healthcare professionals in this space.

The closing plenary was delivered by Dr Louise Woodward (Paediatrician, Environmental Advocate) and Mililma May, who discussed the significant impacts of fossil fuels and climate change on health, latest developments, and the powerful role of paediatricians in advocacy.

In the afternoon, prevocational workshops featured a mentoring program connecting trainees and consultants, and a panel on practical advocacy with Dr Louise Woodward and Dr Paul Bauert.

ACAH26 also featured fourteen emerging and established researchers who shared their latest work in child and adolescent health. Congratulations to the prize winners. Dr Stephanie Nesbit won the ACAH26 Research Prize for her presentation, 'Room for improvement: compliance with standards for echocardiography and clinical review in children with acute rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease in Central Australia and the Barkly, 2019 – 2023'. The Higher Degree Research Prize was awarded to Patrick Hawker, for his presentation, 'Development of a family-focussed digital intervention for children with neurodevelopmental disabilities'. The judging panel were impressed with the high standard of research presentations and would like to congratulate all the presenters and their teams.

> "The 2026 ACAH Conference in Darwin was a highlight for me. We heard about key topics affecting children and adolescents in Australia, particularly our First Nations young people. It was inspiring to be amongst like-minded colleagues from a diverse range of clinical backgrounds. For me, this sets ACAH apart and I am excited by the potential of our collective voices to further child and adolescent health.

ACAH2026

Thank you to everyone who made ACAH26 such a success, especially our Bronze sponsors: Avant, University of Sydney, MediFinancial and Flinders University.

I would like to acknowledge and thank the organising committee for their incredible work over the last year: Dr Monica Parker, Dr Teresa Pham, Dr Tara McFadyen, Dr Te-Yu Hung, Prof Peter Morris, Dr Paul Bauert and Dr Benedicta Yudianto.

Thank you to the ACAH Board and Prevocational Committee for your support of our vision and our event, especially Dr Jacki Small, Prof Hasantha Gunasekera, Peter Barclay, Dr Amelia Lewis, Dr Anysha Walia, Dr Pretashini Somasundram, Dr Clara Charbine and Dr Kumaran Manivannan.

Thank you to Michelle Pham and Dr Lily Chen for your incredible behind-the-scenes work with marketing, social media, design and much more.

Finally, many thanks to everyone who travelled to Larrakia Country to join us. We hope you left ACAH26 feeling inspired to "be the change" – just like Dr Fejo's song. Looking forward to seeing you at ACAH27!

> Best conference I've attended in a while. Strongly paediatric focused with a very local context, championed voices of local community and passionate speakers working on the ground and also maintained wider lens of global health. Excellent convenors, and the size of the conference allowed for extremely high standards for presentation and immersion in learning as opposed to often very rapid and corporate feeling conferences! Amazing work team!

11 Financial Report 2026

ACAH ends 2026 in a very strong financial position. Our Darwin Conference (Building Brighter Futures) was an incredible success and also provided a much needed boost to the account balance. In the last AGM we highlighted our longstanding issue with cashflow, given we have large upfront payments due for conferences with income coming later. We now have reached our goal: to be able to fully cover one conference in advance, without reliance on conference income from registrations and sponsorships.

ACAH Income has been very strong, particularly the ACAH26 Darwin conference ($56k profit), but also our Webinar income ($4.4k) and Membership income. ACAH Expenses have been largely as budgeted.

Our plan at the last AGM was for a membership drive, to run more Webinars, and seek government funding for the conference, all of which we were able to achieve, however, we decided to continue with the previous conference budget given our strong financial position rather than aim for smaller venues.

The ACAH 2026 AGM Budget papers highlight the strong financial position that was as expected other than the stronger than anticipated ACAH26 Conference income (due to high registrations, sponsorships and a successful NT government conference support application). We have advice to include a budget position and a variance so we will report this in future years.

The current ACAH Financial position provides a strong foundation to plan for growth in our membership and more impact in our goal to advance the health and wellbeing of all infants, children and young people.
